The Adventures of... CAP and CINO

This month our friends learn all about Autumn and why leaves fall!

Cap and Cino are most unusual friends. You see Cap is a cat and Cino is a dog and that is certainly quite peculiar.

Cap and Cino

noticed when they walked out of the back door of Hawkes House, was that it felt a little colder than yesterday. Then they realised that it wasn't the grass which had changed colour, but that the garden was covered in golden brown leaves.

Cino was confused. "I thought leaves were green" he said "and usually hanging on the trees". When Cap looked up, he saw the trees no longer had leaves and he could only see the branches. James explained "It's Autumn and that's what happens at this time of year. The leaves die and fall to the ground." Cino looked sad at the thought of leaves dying but James went on to explain that unless the leaves fall to the ground, new leaves can't appear in the Spring. He asked them "Did you know that in the USA, they call Autumn 'The Fall' because the leaves fall from the trees?". Cap and Cino didn't know that but they agreed that although it made sense, they liked the name 'Autumn' – it sounded cheerful!

The three of them found a rake and wheelbarrow in James' shed and together they swept up all the leaves into a big pile. Unfortunately, at that very moment a huge gust of wind blew and the leaves flew everywhere! Once they had swept them all up again, Cino picked up a couple of very beautiful and large Horse Chestnut leaves and put them in his pocket. "I'm going to use them later to make a collage of the garden in Autumn". Cap thought that this was a wonderful idea and after a while he found some Oak leaves and Acorns to give to his friend.
